BACKGROUND-

Put forward by the administration as a means of promoting the defense of the United States by aiding nations fighting totalitarian aggression, the lease-lend bill is approaching the end of House hearings early this week, while a Senate committee is about to start hearings. All signs point to the major battle to amend it in the Senate.

Mr. Bullitt amplified that there are large groups in Germany out of sympathy with the Hitler goal of conquest, but they are powerless to express themselves. For that reason, he said, German morale would not hold up as England's has, if the British become able to bomb Germany as England has been bombed. He predicted there would follow an internal collapse that would give England victory.
